Everyone agrees that they would like to see their children exude self esteem and feel loving, caring, competent and happy. The question is how to get all children to that point. This talk examines the beliefs that undermine our goal and the beliefs that support exactly what we want for all children.

Dr. Jeri Quirk is a psychotherapist and an educator with over 20 years experience working with children, teens and families.

Parents, grandparents, teachers, child advocates everyone is welcome and could benefit from this discussion.
